ABOUT THE SEMINAR

Technological advancement has made the globe small in terms of distance and travelling, impact is visible on teacher education too. In fact the knowledge explosion and population explosion have given birth to many issues such as preparation of different types of teachers for the globe stretching the boundary of teacher education in terms of curriculum & manpower planning and creating teachers to undertake social, national and international issues. Education Commission (1972) - Learning to be propagated the idea of lifelong education. Ivan Illich's concept of de-schooling society also focused on non-formal education and lifelong education to cater the need of the mankind. UNESCO report (1996) again suggested to extend the horizon of knowledge and learning through the four pillars of education- Learning to know, Learning to do, Learning to be and Learning to live together. Khar, Meenakshi (2007) has too wished to get a place on the earth where no nation claims as its own. Globalization is the truth of the day and teacher education influences the globalization and is being influenced by it. It is a matter of concern and discussion and in this light the institution has undertaken the concept to discuss through seminar to construct something precious for teacher education.

Bihar is a poor potential state of a developing nation and so is the major issue of the seminar. Teacher education in Bihar has to go a long way and so the teacher education in Bihar needs to be discussed at length. Globalization is related to distance learning and so teacher education in global term cannot be discussed if teacher education through distance mode is not discussed. All the under mentioned subthemes have their repercussion on the focal theme and therefore their relevance is unchallenged. The seminar intends to discuss and argue to explore something important for development of teacher education globally and to cope up with the global demand and standard of teacher education in the state and the nation.

ABOUT THE PATNA TRAINING COLLEGE

Lord Curzon's momentous declaration for improving the training colleges as well as for increasing the output of trained secondary teachers, in the Resolution on Education Policy (1904), initiated a new era in the training of secondary teachers. Due to the recommendation, four training colleges were established: Bombay (1906), Calcutta (1908), Patna (1908) and Decca (1910). The Patna Training College completed hundred years of its existence and acquired the distinction of mother institution of teacher education in the region which is now comprised of Bihar, Orissa and Jharkhand. The College has a glorious past in making of teachers who make the destiny of the nation. Patna Training College is a constituent unit of Patna University. Patna Training college, women's Training College and Department of Education constitute the Faculty of Education, Patna University. J.P.Blair joined as the first principal of the college on the 1st October, 1908. A.A.Kazami was the first Indian principal, who took over the charge on the 15th August, 1947. Although the college was primarily established to provide bachelor degree in teacher training to graduates for secondary school teaching but the course of Bachelor of Training (B.T.) examinations could be started till 1915-16. This was perhaps due to the controversy in England as to what type of training should be introduced in India. It controversy persisted for many years. Before that the college provided L.T. (Licentiate of Training) degree. On the 1st October, 1917, the Patna Training College was affiliated to the Patna University under section II of the Patna University Act 1917. Before that the college was affiliated to Calcutta University. With the affiliation to Patna University B.T. programme was replaced with B.Ed. programme. In 1926, L.T. programme was abolished and one year course, Diploma in Education (Dip in ED) was started for preparing teachers for primary and middle schools. The duration of B.Ed. programme was extended from one academic to two academic year. In 1935, the Patna Training College started one year Master of Education (M.Ed.) programme for postgraduate teaching in Education. The college has the distinction of being the first college in the country to start postgraduate teaching in education. In 1954-55, separate postgraduate departments came into existence as a result of new Patna University Act 1951. The new building of the Postgraduate Department of Education was constructed in the PTC campus itself. The Patna Training College is a premier institution of the country. Two Teacher Education colleges of the Patna University namely Patna Training College and Women's Training College are the only constituent colleges of teacher education in the university system of Bihar. All other teacher education/training colleges running in the university system of Bihar are private colleges or colleges running self financing B.Ed. courses. Most of the professionals working in SCERT, SIET, BEP, SIEMAT, DIETs, Teacher Education Colleges, governmental and non-governmental organizations etc. of the state are the alumni of the Patna Training College. In fact the Patna Training College still forms the backbone of secondary teacher training programme of the state. In fact we manage the teacher education of the state for over a century.

ABOUT PATNA UNIVERSITY

Patna University was established in 1917 and it functioned as affiliating and examining body for over 30 years. On January 2, 1952 it was converted into a purely teaching -cum-residential University. It is one of the oldest Universities in the Country. In Bihar it is the first, and in the subcontinent, it is the seventh oldest University.

The Patna University has 31 postgraduate departments in the faculties of Science, Social Sciences, Humanities, Education, Commerce, Law, Fine Arts and 10 constituent colleges, four institutes, and a Directorate of Distance Education (DDE).

Patna University is the only university of Bihar that has full-fledged Faculty of Education and having two constituent teachers' training colleges: Patna Training College and Women's Training College. All other teacher education/training colleges running in the university system of Bihar are private colleges or colleges running self-financing B.Ed. courses.

ABOUT DDE, PATNA UNIVERSITY

The Directorate of Distance Education (DDE), Patna University was established in 1974 and it is the first institute in the eastern region of India to impart education in ODL mode. For the last 32 year the DDE has been serving continuously in the field of higher education and has been gaining popularity day by day. The fast increasing number of students every year indicates its popularity. At present more than 20,000 students are getting their education through this institute. Being an integral part of the Patna University the Directorate of Distance Education is governed by the decisions of the statutory bodies of the university.

ABOUT PATNA

Patna is the largest town and capital of the Indian state of Bihar. Patna is one of the oldest continuously inhabited places in the world.
